BORAH'S PEACE CONFERENCE PROPOSAL BRINGS FLOOD OF RESERVATIONS FROM SOLONS

Idaho Senator Hopes Reparations Muddle Can Be Cleared Up Without America Becoming Entangled, Thru A Conference Of World Powers With Uncle Sam In Role Of Host

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26. — A flood of reservations today threatened to engulf Senator Borah's proposal for an international economic and disarmament conference as Senator Lodge and other Republican leaders sought to calm the angry verbal tempest it has already aroused.

Following a series of conferences held by administration spokesmen it was stated Lodge and his associates might be willing to accept the Borah plan as an amendment to the pending navy supply bill provided he in turn agreed to the reservations they were considering.

Enough of the probable nature of these reservations was conveyed to Borah and other senators standing with him to convince them they would be destructive "of his proposal" and reduce it to a mere declaration of policy by the senate regarding the German reparations muddle without making it mandatory on the administration to summon such a conference.

Borah said today he was being flooded with communications from outside urging him to press the adoption of his proposal and expressing the warmest approval of it. He explained he was seeking a practical solution of the European economic and financial crisis which, in his judgment is imperiling the peace of the world, and the welfare of the American people as well as the nations overseas

He was willing to accept any sub for his plan provided it would accomplish the purpose for which his own proposal was intended.

Borah would be willing to have the reparations muddle submitted to arbitration and the good offices of the Hague tribunal used to that end, but he believed the United States was in a position to bring about a readjustment of European affairs without becoming entagnled in them any more than it is now. He pointed to the peace conference successfully conducted by former President Theodore Roosevelt at Portsmouth, N. H., which ended the

POINCARE REJECTS GERMAN PROPOSALS GUARANTEEING LINE

Offer Made Thru French Ambassador In America Feared By France

'WOULD RUN 30 YRS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26. — The new German government, headed by Dr Wilhelm Cuno, has formally proposed to the principal world powers a new peace pact, built out of the ashes of the World war, and designed to maintain the peace of Europe for the next 30 years by mutual agreement, it was learned authoritatively today.

The Germans proposed that Britain, France, Italy and Germany herself enter into a four power pact to observe and presserve for the next thirty years, European boundaries as they exist today.

LONDON, Dec 26—German proposals, submitted to Secretary Charles E. Hughes, thru the French ambassador at Washington, to guarantee the German frontier for thirty years, have been turned down by Premier Poincare, of France, it was learned here this afternoon, in the most authoritative quarters.

Details of the program are not officially known, but it is understood that Germany proposed thru Jules Jusserand, French ambassador to the United States, that Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy enter into a quadruple pact to guarantee the German boundaries for thirty years.

Germany's offer was reported to propose maintaining the present frontier subject to withdrawal from the pact by any power after a national referendum.

Premier Poincare was said to have declined the proposals on the ground that the French constitution did not provide for any such referendum.

The French premier was understood to have taken the stand that Germany might attempt to evade her obligations under the agreement thru a "faked' referendum.

SALVATION ARMY PROG'M PLEASES LARGE AUDIENCE

Conceded the best in years, the Christmas program given by the Salvation Army Post Christmas night, Monday in the Central school auditorium, was well attended.

Approximately sixty five children, members of the Salvation Army Sunday school took part in the program. The program was lengthy. It consisted of songs, dialogs, recitations, exercises and playlets. One of the features of the program was the Christmas tree. Every child received a treat which consisted of a large orange and high grade candies.

The Salvation Army band serenaded the town Monday morning from 7 to 10 o'clock.

As late as Tuesday the local post was still giving away baskets of food to the city's poor and needy. Garments, shoes and clothing were also given to the poor by the Salvation Army.

Any family in this city that has been overlooked and has not received a basket of food is requested to call the Salvation Army and they will be taken care of, Adj. Anthony Vendeville said Tuesday.

The Salvation Army kettles that were kept boiling all last week, netted the post $165 for charity purposes. Last year the kettles netted the local post $200.

In behalf of the Salvation Army Adj Vendeville wishes to thank the public for its liberal and generous support, the Boy Scouts for their help and the school children, who cheerfully contributed to the relief of the city's poor.

AMERICAN WOMEN SMARTER, BUT ENGLISH WOMEN MORE INDIVIDUAL, IS CONCLUSION

FREAK COLT IS SOLD BY BEALL

The freak colt which has attracted scores of curious visitors to the Willard Beall farm south of Keene, was purchased by Ellsworth Wright, of Coshocton, Saturday. The animal brot considerable more than it would have commanded had it been a perfect specimen.

The colt is six months old and has a cloven hoof on the right fore leg. Otherwise it is a handsome white faced sorrel, of the male sex.

Mr. Beall refused to divulge the purchase price, but remarked that it was a handsome figure. Mr. Wright has not indicated what use he will make of the animal.

The proper length for skirts "depends on the leg."

Whether a woman should wear sleeveless gowns or not "depends on the arm."

Clothing for New York women is "extremely conventional and rather monotonous in style."

American women have "beautifully shod" feet, "well-tended" hands, are indescribably "chic," — and "extremely generous."

The foregoing are a few epigrams from the pen of Mrs. John Fortesque, of London, wife of the Ling's librarian, who returned to England recently from a trip to the United States. Mrs. Fortesque is widely known in Europe at "Cintra," a fashionable dress designer She has written her impressions of American women and their clothes in the appended article for International News Service.

Mrs. Fortesque's husband recently was the center of considerable discussion when he was barred from speaking at the Naval Academy in Annapolis because of passages appearing in a book written by him a number of years ago. The excerpts, widely quoted in the press, were declared to cast aspersions on American national integrity.

WALKER'S PAPERS OF ELECTION AT THE COURTHOUSE

COLUMBUS, Dec. 26—It will be over a week before at least 72 Ohioans, elected last November to four-year terms as county commissioners, beginning next month, will be permitted to take office

This announcement was made today by Secretary of State Smith, who has been served with papers issued by Common Pleas Judge Rogers here, temporarily enjoining the secretary of state from issuing a certificate of election to county Commissioner-Elect Westlake, Columbus.

The injunction was in response to a request by John Scott, Columbus, one of the Franklin-co commissioners, who challenges the constitutionality of the law which provided for the election last month of one commissioner in each of Ohio's 88 counties.

Scott's suit is to be heard on its merits before Common Pleas Judge Duncan, Saturday.

Secretary Smith says that he issued certificates to about sixteen commissioners-elect before being served in the Scott case, but will issue no more similar commissions prior to Saturday's hearing

Charles Walker, Republican, of White Eyes-tp, is Coshocton-co's commissioner elect for the four-year term. He has not yet received his certificate of election, but it is in the hands of Clerk of Courts Howard Shaw, Tuesday afternoon.

DRY AGENT IS MURDERED IN STEUBENVILLE

STEUBENVILLE, Dec 26—Shot thru the head and back, the body of Charles "Dixie" Blinn, prohibition enforcement agent, was found early today in Marsh alley, a dark thoroughfare in the heart of Steubenville

Blinn had died instantly. The shooting is attributed to Blinn's activity in enforcing the Crabbee act and his life had been threatened a score of times, police say.

Police are without a definite clue to the murderer One bullet entered Blinn's head and another passed thru his back and penetrated his heart causing instant death.

The third passed thru his hand, indicating a struggle. His clothes had been rifled and his revolver and pocketbook stolen His body was lying in a muddy spot in the dark alley and was found by a negro who was returning home from a dance, which was held only a short distance away

Marsh alley is the center of the Polish and Negro sections of the city. Thus far the police have found no one who heard shots It is their belief this morning that Blinn was murdered in a nearby house and carried to the alley

He had been dead two hours, physicians say, before his body was found. Blinn had been conducting numerous raids in all sections of Jefferson-co and had been in numerous fights. He and his assistant had been on a raiding expedition early last evening, and it is believed that while he was in the act of raiding a place in the Marsh alley district that he was slain An assistant to Blinn has disappeared but it is not that he was with Blinn at the time of the shooting.

Blinn is the second prohibition officer slain here within a short time

Michael Voltry was found along a roadside near here several weeks ago with four bullets in his body Three others who assisted Voltry in making liquor raids were also slain in various parts of the county

Financial Letter

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION
Pre-Holiday Spirit Prevailing
By JAMES B. CLEWS.

WALL STREET, New York, Dec. 26. — Pre-holiday quiet and absence of fundamental causes of change in market values have been characteristic during the past week. While for a day or two a fillip was given to prices by the erroneous reports concerning a large German loan, later and more solid information shows that whatever the Administration may have in prospect it will not reach the point of recommending definite loan proposals for a good while, if at all. It now appears that the situation outlined last summer has not changed, and this means that the United States will naturally be inclined to await the arrival of a much clearer situation in Europe before committing itself further. Domestic business is still the important element in the outlook.

Demand Still Increasing.

Notwithstanding pessimistic forecasts in some quarters, and in spite of indisposition on the part of some to place orders far in advance, the volume of domestic business continues very satisfactory. From the West, it is reported that holiday trade is better than for several years past, a fact which is substantiated by the high levels of retail trade index numbers. Higher prices for copper have carried that metal well up toward 15¢ a pound, with excellent demand, a fact which has been reflected in the copper shares. These issues have shown very decided ability to hold their own. Fairly good results for the year as a whole are now predicted for United States Steel, and while the independents have not done as well it is thot that they will be able to report an improved financial condition in most cases. There is a satisfactory outlook in many of the machinery and machine tool lines. As for oil, increasing demand has helped to keep the prices of shares up and has advanced a good many of them. Rumors of merger plans have tended to keep the equipment stocks up to high levels, but the good condition of their order books would have a strong contributory influence working to that end in any event. The consummation of the arrangements for an important combination of packing plants, the financing to be placed probably in this market, has tended to strengthen the situation in Middle Western business quite materially.

Stock Dividend Movement Ending.

A smaller flow of stock dividends has been characteristic during the past week, and the approach of the end of the year makes it probable that for the present further action in this direction will be less frequent. Congress has not taken such action as was anticipated by many, and at the present moment does not seem likely to take it. This defers the prospect of new taxation until another session, with doubt as to the probability of it even then. It is likely that no immediate action would be attempted, even if a special session of Congress should be summoned, next spring. Meantime the effort to obtain legislation designed to end the issue of tax exempt bonds represents another way of approaching the situation which has been supposed to call for the imposition of new taxes. Greater economy and the adoption of a more conservative policy regarding the offering of "tax exempt" bonds would do all that is really needed in Federal finance. With the stock dividends that have already been issued and with the other financial readjustments accompanying the year-end—and including extra dividends, as well as other changes—effort to attack corporate surpluses will encounter difficulties that perhaps had not been foreseen by radical legislators.

Railroad Conservatism.

The expected action of Great Northern in keeping its dividend down to a 5 per cent rate represents the conservative tendencies that are now prevalent in the transportation world. Altho Great Northern directors issued an optimistic statement relating to the prospects for 1923, it remains true that these good prospects are still to be realized and that there is a disposition on the part of a good many railroad financiers to hold back and conserve their funds, pending further indication of development. As yet, there is nothing to indicate whether Congress will or will not act practically upon the President's suggestions relative to change of the status of the Labor Board, and there is some reason for thinking that this will be deferred because of the opportunity that would be offered by such legislation, for the offering of radical amendments designed to change the desirable features of the Transportation act.

Autumn Money Strain.

All indications now point to the definite ending of the autumn money strain which this year, however, has been very much less than usual in intensity. Latest reports of the Federal Reserve System show slackening in commercial demand and fresh accumulation of gold. The reserve strength of the banking organization is practically unlimited, so far as any immediate demands are concerned. The question whether foreign financing in this market is likely to go on developing is, of course, dependent upon reparations readjustments. The reassembling of the conference of Premiers in London after the holidays are over will throw more light upon this matter than is now available. Foreign securities, naturally, await further developments in regard to exchange and international politics before revealing any definite trend in any direction.

Market Outlook.

Comparative quiet for some days past has been a natural predecessor of the three-day holiday which commenced on Saturday. Trading has not been concentrated in any special group of stocks, but has been spread over a considerable number, and evidently represents, in part, sales for the purpose of recording tax losses. So far as the general market is concerned, the movement in prices has been moderate, with no striking features in any department. Nothing points to further recession of consequence, as the floating supply of stocks is not large, and most shares are now selling at figures which cannot be considered dear. About the only thing that is causing any real uneasiness is the fear of hostile legislation, and while the chance of this is growing more remote it nevertheless has a tendency to restrict freer buying, this being the market's worst feature at the present writing.

A Living Monument to Ourselves

Lawrence Sheriffe made a fortune as a shopkeeper in London. No one today knows where his shop of the sixteenth century stood, but every boy who has read "Tom Brown" knows about the school which Sheriffe founded at Rugby. The man is immortal who founded the school where such boys as Thomas Hughes, Dean Stanley, and Matthew Arnold went to school.

The founders and supporters of a Christian University like Ohio Wesleyan have built a monument that will endure through all time. They have opened a fountain of good from which a perennial stream of Christian influence will flow for future generations.

If none of us like to be forgotten, isn't it better to endow a university and build for ourselves an imperishable living monument, rather than just a granite one to mark our final resting place?

"FOLLOW ME"

Most of us have stowed away in our minds a recollection of the two types of Negroes that seem to have disappeared almost entirely from American life. One was the long, gangling, intense sort of good natured fellow, who was funny because of his very seriousness. Another was the quaint, slow talking fellow whose words were fraught with homely philosophy.

The advance of civilization and the increased education among Negroes, with the consequent specialization of interests that always tends to isolate the different classes and types of people, have all operated to put most of us out of touch with these delightfully humorous folks whose tribulations and whose quaint philosophy have lightened their own burdens as well as the burdens of others. "Follow Me," J. M. Meingarden's All Colored show presents a pair of these almost extinct natural comedians. Billy Higgins, with a pair of swinging arms that he never seems to know what to do with, yet with which he seems to emphasize almost every human emotion, is perhaps one of the most perfect types of the former natural comedian as there is on the American stage today. He has supplemented his natural qualifications with some very close observations of this blended sense and nonsense type of darkey which he depicts, while Clifford Ross complements Higgins' work with that dry, unctuous sort of humor, filled with quaint philosophy that was made famous by the late Bert Williams, whose style he very nearly, and most naturally, approximates.

The antics of these two comedians provide a clean and wholesome evening's entertainment, liberally punctuated with song numbers and dancing specialties, all set in the most elaborate scenic equipment and elaborately costumed. "Follow Me" is a show of real tonic value to the mind and equally pleasing to both the eye and the ear. To hear that immense chorus of more than fifty colored people singing some of the songs we have heard before, with that peculiar verve that is characteristic of race harmonies, is to give these songs a new value to the hearer. "Follow Me" will be at the Sixth Street theatre Friday, December 29.

PASTORS ARE RILED OVER ARBUCKLE'S RETURN TO FILMS

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 26.—An open meeting of the ministerial union has been called for today to discuss the proposed return of Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle to the screen.

Rev. "Bob" Shuler, one of the clergyman active in the agitation against Arbuckle in announcing the meeting said today:

"We may be sorry for Arbuckle and anxious that he will show signs of penitence so that we might forgive him but at present we are more interested in taking care of future generations than we are in giving this man who has sinned against society a chance to build himself up again."

Rev. G. A. Briegleb, pastor of the West Lake Presbyterian church said: "One week ago after a sermon. Will Hays spent two hours with me in the privacy of my study. Before God, he pledged himself to protect the childhood of America. Within 72 hours we learned how true his pledge was."

BRITAIN HAS A SECRET ORDER LIKE THE KLAN

LONDON, Dec. 26.—A new secret order of "crusaders" which is described as a cross between the Italian Fascisti and the American Ku Klux Klan, has made its appearance in Great Britain and was said today to be growing rapidly.

Major Faber, the grand marshal said the organization was going into politics and that eventually it might succeed in electing a majority to the house of commons.

He said the activities of the organization would be entirely legal and constitutional and there was no reason for police interference. The officers wear red robes with a large white cross in front.

COMB SAGE TEA IN FADED OR GRAY HAIR

If Mixed With Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied, with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. It's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through the hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color, and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

RELIEF FUND CASE WILL BE HEARD BY BROWN-CO JURIST

That Judge James W. Tarbell, of Brown-co. will sit in the trial of the suit of Everly Boner vs. Holmes county Relief committee now seems probable. Judge W. N. Crow of the local common pleas court will refuse to sit, it is understood, because he is a donor to the fund in dispute. The case cannot possibly come to trial for several months but it is easily the prevailing topic of discussion locally. This is due to the fact that the local post and the McClure post, of Holmesville, of the American Legion are engaged in the fight to have the fund turned over to the Legion.

Judge Tarbell is a close friend of Judge Crow and is considered one of the ablest judges in Ohio. An amusing incident is on record of one of his earlier visits to Holmes-co.

The judge had been "swapping" stories with W. F. Garver. The next day Garver appeared in court in behalf of the defendant. The trial became heated and Mr. Garver was continually objecting to the questions of plaintiff's counsel on technical grounds. Finally, Judge Tarbell turned to him, smiled, and said, "Now, Mr. Garver, remember the story I told you last night."

George Sharp, counsel for the plaintiff, demanded that the story be told to the jury. The story as it appears on the court records, is as follows:

"A young, inexperienced member of a law firm of Cincinnati had just concluded his first case. He had defended an estate in a suit brot against it and had won the case. Asked by the administrator of the estate what his fee would be, the young attorney replied that it was $500.

"The administrator agreed to this but asked that an itemized account be made out for the heirs. The attorney returned to the offices of the firm but found that after he had charged the usual fee for filing the case, drawing up the petition, etc., the total was only $220. He then consulted an older lawyer and asked him what he would do. He was advised to double the usual fees and "pad" the account up to $500. The youngster objected to charging such exhorbitant fees.

"After this he consulted the oldest member of the firm. His reply was, "Oh, that's easy. Put all the usual fees down, then add $280 for lying awake at night and thinking about the damn case!"

FAMILY HEAD IS HOME FOR XMAS

Christmas is the one day in the year when families are supposed to be re-united.

Mrs. Arthur Davenport, west of town, is convinced that they should be. So were her two children. None of them had seen the "head" of the family for almost six months. In fact, they weren't at all sure that they would see him Christmas day.

Mrs. Davenport determined to make sure. She told officials that when last seen Arthur was headed for Canton. She signed the affidavit of desertion.

Sheriff Robert Henderson located his quarry in Canton and brot him back Friday. A preliminary hearing was held in mayor's court, Saturday afternoon. The charges were not pressed vigorously. Davenport was released on bond, later in the afternoon.

Which left a full day of reconciliation before Christmas.

LEEPER WINS

A verdict of $25 for the plaintiff was brot in by the jury in the case of Leeper vs. Biler, Thursday afternoon. The plaintiff, Lorenzo Leeper asked $200. The case rose over a dispute between a farmer and his tenant.

MISS SPRING ILL

Miss Adelaide Koons, of Mt. Vernon, took the place of Miss Zella Spring, court stenographer, during Miss Spring's illness last week. Miss Koons is well known to many Millersburg people and is an efficient stenographer. Miss Spring will probably return this week.

PLAINTIFF WINS

The case of the Glenmont Equity Exchange vs. Willis Manchester for $250 over disputed accounts was tried in common pleas court Friday and Saturday. A verdict of $100 for the plaintiff was brot in Saturday.

POISON BOOZE IS CAUSE OF DEATHS OF SIX IN N. YORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—Toll of Christmas festivities here yesterday was six lives.

The bodies of five men and one woman lie in the morgue today awaiting autopsies to determine whether or not death was due to poison liquor.

Another victim, a boy of 14, is expected to recover. Prohibition officials, however, are elated and declare it to have been the dryest Xmas in the history of Manhattan.

TUG WITH CREW OF 8 LOST IN LAKE

CLEVELAND, Dec. 26.—While practically all hope of finding a trace of the Tug Cornell which left this port for Buffalo last Thursday with a crew of eight had been abandoned, officials of the Great Lakes Towing Co. secured a mail airplane from the postoffice to locate the tug or determine the manner in which she had been wrecked. The mail will scour every mile of the lake between here and Buffalo to which port the CorneN was bound when she started her voyage.

Four tugs returned early today from a fruitless search of the lake waters, which lasted all of Christmas day. They reported a thorough combing of the lake had failed to reveal even the slightest clue to the mystery surrounding the disappearance of the tug.

CHURCHES FITTINGLY CELEBRATE HOLIDAY

Splendid Christmas programs were held in the Newcomerstown churches Sunday night. Each church was filled to capacity with friends, relatives and parents of the children taking part in the programs.

The program at the United Bretiren church was exceptionally good thruout. Each child that took part in the program did well. At the conclusion of the program each member of the U. B. Sunday school received a treat from Old Santa Claus.

The program was under the supervision of Mrs. Haver, of that church.

DANCES POPULAR

The Casino dance pavilion at Lydick hall was the center of attraction Christmas Day as far as dancing was concerned. Both the afternoon and the evening dances were well attended.

Patrons came from Dover, New Philadelphia, Dennison, Uhrichsville and Coshocton to dance. The music for the afternoon and evening dances was furnished by the Duffy-Armstrong musical combination.

Messrs. Vane Scott and Lloyd Levy, managers of the Casino, gave away balloons as favors to the patrons.

COUNCIL MEETS

The Newcomerstown council will meet this evening in regular session at the mayor's office. An important meeting is expected this evening. The street and roads committee is expected to have a complete report to make tonight on the paving of the remainder of east State-st from River-st to the other end of town.

It is likely that council will decide tonight to meet next Tuesday night instead of Monday, New Year's.

INSANE PATIENT GOES ON RAMPAGE

CLEVELAND, Dec. 26.—Cleveland's new psychopathic hospital, opened two weeks ago, and built at a cost of $500,000 was closed today by order of Welfare Director Ralph Perkins, and may be ordered entirely rebuilt.

The building had been considered perfect for the tratment of insane persons but the fallacy was demonstrated, when a patient became violent Christmas eve, started on a rampage, wrecked the lighting system, overpowered guards, and escaped clad only in a night shirt and shoes.

He was recaptured late yesterday in Parma village after terrorizing scores of persons and is confined in irons in the county jail.

DANCER AND HER PIANIST QUARREL, BREAK UP SHOW

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—When a dancer has artistic temperament and her accompanying pianist has artistic temperament, the spectators suffer. So it developed when Isadore Duncan, dancing before a crowded house passed a facetious remark about her accompanyist in an undertone. Max Rabinowitz at the piano became displeased and refused to go on with his playing.

The show ended then and there, with the exception that the dancer's poet husband ran about the house excitedly seeking his wife, who denied her presence to him.

It was said that she was indisposed as a result of temperament.

AMERICAN

that I could have worked in a more delightful place nor among kinder friends than the hotel staff; but the intricate business connected with the running of dress shows naturally swallowed up most of my leisure time.

Certainly I had every opportunity of studying the American woman, and from matron to maid I found her universally charming. As there are no bounds to American hospitality, so there appears to be no limit to the energy and resource of American women. They can be wonderful friends, as I proved every day of my visit. My two hostesses submitted with smiling faces to every form of inconvenience caused by sheltering a working dressmaker under their respective roofs. The telephone never ceased from troubling, and they were literally never at rest. Business men, press interviewers, mannequins, etc., came to see me at all hours of the day and night and were received with kind cordiality by the mistress of the house. I was given every facility to see anyone I chose, and in all my ways and works I received the encouragement and practical help of these patient and indefatigable friends.

"RECEPTIVE" AND "EAGER"

The characteristics that struck me most were the receptiveness, the adaptability and the eager intelligence of the American women. They are not afraid of new ideas and seem always hungry to assimilate more, and they have very decided views of their own. They are keen conversationalists and love the collision of minds. They are progressive and do not condemn a theory because it is new, but immediately begin to analyze it and put it to the test They keep open, alert minds and seem always ready to be convinced, if their shrewd common sense so directs them. They are not half so slow and cautious as we British.

Apparently I am the first prophet of individualism in dress to cross the Atlantic. When I was asked what the length of the skirt should be I merely replied, "Depends upon the leg," and to the question, "Should gowns be sleeveless or not?" I answered, "Depends upon the arm." Instead of instantly losing interest in me because I refuse blindly to follow the dictates of fashion and insist upon designing for the individual and creating clothes to suit each type of woman, your press instantly preached my doctrine, and your women were only too ready to accept my views —and my gowns—with eager interest. I should have perfectly understood it if America had "turned me down" as a crank; for I know how difficult it is to "disregard the opinion of the Joneses." But my gowns and my views met with sympathy and appreciation wherever I went. This surprised me all the more, for after attending various functions and seeing the models in your leading stores I realized that, though very gorgeous and lovely, dress for women in New York, is, on the whole, very conventional and rather monotonous in style. Everywhere I saw straight, sleeveless gowns, with very little line or drapery about them—and drapery can be such a help, especially when one has passed the glorious debutante stage, when nearly all things are possible.

DELICIOUS DEBUTANTES

And how delicious are your debutantes! I had been led to expect that they would be of rather athletic build and was amazed when my dressing-room at the Plaza was invaded by a bevy of dainty sylphs with bobbed heads, who came to try on my various models. And I can truthfully say that I never enjoyed seeing my models more than when they were worn by the beautiful youth of America.

I think that American women are smarter by day than we English women. From the society woman to the stenographer in New York I found them always well finished. Their hair and hands are so well tended, their feet beautifully shod —they are indescribably chic. Of course they have the advantage of a more settled climate and are less likely to have a toilette ruined by rain and mud than we in England. Also, when one knows that of the thirteen million motor cars in the world ten millions are in America, one realizes that nearly every woman of any means must possess a car. And one can be far more elaborate if one is driven everywhere.

But I think that I can justly claim that, though American women are extraordinarily smart at night, the English women are more individual in their dress, and therefore an evening function in London is a more picturesque affair than one in New York, though maybe less gorgeous. I have heard American women who have attended our courts and drawing-rooms admit this in the most generous way.

Yes—generous is the word that best describes the women of America. They are generous of their help, their interest, their enthusiasm, their admiration, their hospitality: and one English woman, at any rate, will never forget the debt of gratitude she owes them.

Fall's Retirement

WHETHER Secretary Albert B. Fall carries out his reported intention to retire from the Cabinet is a matter that will excite little interest. Few outside of a small circle of old-guard cronies would regret his departure or mourn his loss. On the other hand, there is no reason to believe that his successor would be any less reactionary. It already is rumored that this successor will be Carmi Thompson, recently defeated for the governorship of this state, but a close personal and political friend of President Harding.

Fall is dissatisfied over being "submerged" in the Cabinet. This probably means that he is resentful because the peaceful Hughes policy toward Mexico has prevailed over his own militant plans. In his own dominion, Secretary Fall has not been innocuous. Few Secretaries of the Interior have ever distributed national resources among private monopolies wih a more lavish hand. The Teapot Dome transaction, in which a huge Government oil reserve was turned over to a private corporation, has been the outstanding act of his administration.

He belongs to a small class of politicians which, we believe and fervently hope, is fast disappearing. To his complaint of being "submerged," one might justly ask when he ever emerged. In the Cabinet, as in the Senate, he has been identified with all that was unprogressive. He has been a stanch friend of the special interests. He has been accused of sponsoring policies which would benefit him personally, especially in the case of his Mexican properties. The best than can be said of him is that the gang could always depend on him.

The Butler Confirmation

THE confirmation of the nomination of Pierce Butler, a Democrat, to the Supreme Court of the land has been hurriedly driven thru the lame-duck Senate by the Republican leaders. The urgency of the action is a key to the nature of the appointment. It was bitterly opposed by public sentiment in Butler's own community. Therefore, delay might have been fatal.

Pierce Butler is not known to the public outside Minnesota except for the advertising—which in this case may be called notoriety—which has come to him since his nomination by the President. Public sentiment in Minnesota has repudiated him as it repudiated his old-guard crony of the Republican party, Senator Kellogg, in the November election. The City Council of Minneapolis, by a decisive vote, passed a resolution protesting Butler's appointment because of his known history and qualities brot out in his connection with Minneapolis public utilities.

Since his appointment Mr. Butler's fame has spread over the borders of his State. His record has been thoroly detailed in the New Republic and other liberal magazines, which, it must be admitted, are pitifully few. Serving as corporation attorney all his professional life, tho prejudicial to his eligibity as a guardian of the public interest, was not itself a disqualification. His qualities of mind were. These qualities are bigotry, intolerance, narrowness, partisanism. His accession to the Supreme Court at any time would have been a calamity. It is particularly so at the present time.

The Butler appointment looks, at the beginning of the Butler incumbency, like one of the most damaging acts of stupidity achieved by the Harding administration. It is now entirely within the power and discretion of the new Justice to prove that it was not.

Arbuckle And The Public

WILL HAYS can scarcely have enjoyed the exercise of his power as chief of the motion picture industry when he lifted the ban of the trade from Roscoe Arbuckle. Mr. Hays spoke with some feeling of Arbuckle's "exemplary" conduct since the failure of the third attempt last spring to prove him guilty of the death of Virginia Rappe. He spoke of the spirit of Christmas, of Aruckle's innocence before the law, and of "every man's chance to make good."

But Mr. Hays knows well that Arbuckle, broke and discredited and watched, would find virtue more or less enforced. He knows that Arbuckle's escape from legal punishment for crime has only intensified the public feeling as to his general conduct. He knows that the Christmas spirit and the right to work should not be permitted to interfere with certain chasening processes involving public morality. Knowing these things, he must have felt considerable embarrassment in bidding Arbuckle welcome once more to the motion picture theatres of the land.

If such an action had been in response to public opinion it could claim a certain justification. But there is evidence that public opinion has never encouraged such an action. A few months ago Mr. Hays himself seemed to have knowledge of a public opinion against the showing of Arbuckle pictures. He intimated that such feeling constituted his chief reason for barring the three existing Arbuckle films last April. On the other hand, persons interested in these pictures will naturally be pleased over Mr. Hays's new decision. There are $2,500,000 directly or indirectly involved in their fate, and if new Arbuckle productions are released the grounds for withholding the old ones would be considerably weakened.

But Mr. Hays's word is not the last on the subject The public itself must render a final decision. What this may be is perhaps indicated by the president of the board of the Los Angeles District Federation of Women's Clubs. She disapproves of Arbuckle films, and believes that 2,000,000 organized clubwomen will agree with her. While these have not had an opportunity to ratify her position, the mayor of Detroit and Indianapolis have both hastened to do so.

The privilege sought for Arbuckle demands a great deal of forgetting both of events and standards of conduct and the ordinary means which men take to prevent what they abhor.

AVOIDING TROUBLE

Along the line of least resistance I take my calm and cheerful way and so keep trouble in the distance and have a picnic every day Some friends of mine are always ranting they hunt up evils to reform up some hard road forever panting, a weary and bedraggled swarm They hope to rend the world asunder and make of it a whiter spot, but it all ends in smoke and thunder and they're a disillusioned lot I hold it true that every error will some day shrivel up and fall but if I were a holy terror I couldn't hasten things at all. So oft I've seen the ardent martyr go forth to hew abuses down and in the end he hired a carter to haul his weapons back to town I've certain rights that should be cherished, men say my vigils I should keep, but if some tinhorn rights have perished I let them slide, and lose no sleep I've noticed that the people jealous of all their rights are short of friends, and they are bores who like to tell us a narrative that never ends. Let dauntless souls go forth to battle with windmills or chimeras dire, in peace I sit and deftly rattle a stream of discords from my lyre

IF BACK HURTS TAKE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Eat less meat if Kidneys feel like lead or Bladder bothers.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

Energy Expended In Seeing
Few people realize the amount of energy required in seeing, especially when doing close-up work. With perfect eyes the nervous expenditure is very large, but when some error of vision is present, the energy required to overcome it is so excessive that headaches and nervousness often arise. A proper appreciation of these facts will cause thinking people to seek our aid.

AMERICA OPTIMISTIC, EUROPE DOWNCAST, AS NEW YEAR DAWNS

THE dawn of the New Year is marked by striking contrasts in the respective points of view of American and European statesmen, business men and others prominent in the political and industrial life of the two continents.

Optimism, tempered only with speculation that American prosperity may be qualified somewhat by European depression, is the predominating strain in the prognostications of leading citizens of the United States.

A trend toward dire forebodings for the fate of Europe crops up irrepressibly in many of the expressions from across the ocean.

Americans foresee an era of prosperity, Britain a somewhat dubious outlook. Europe enters the New Year still clinging to the hope of further assistance from America.

One notable exception is seen in the statement of the Right Honorable Sir James Craig, Bart, M. P., Prime Minister of Northern Ireland, who points to the peace that reigns in Ulster and declares that the country looks forward to the New Year with hope and confidence.

Another is that of Andrew Rothstein, representative of Soviet Russia in Great Britain, who says that the Russians are "facing the coming year with confidence."

"America can best serve herself and the causes for which she entered the European war, and best help Europe and the world by helping to make the League of Nations . . . an effective instrument," writes Philip Snowden, member of parliament, in his message.

"America and Britain, acting together, could do much to lead in securing the beginnings of world co-operation," observes J. R. Clyne, another member of parliament.

Senator Robert M. La Follette interprets the recent elections to indicate political trend toward "the regaining of control of the government by the people of the United States."

Hon. Calvin Coolidge, Vice-President of the United States, expresses his belief that the country in the last year has been characterized by "adherence to righteous principles applied with common sense," and in these sterling qualities he professes to see naught but "steady and increasing progress" continuing "throu the next year."

Senator William E. Borah expresses the hope that the coming year "be made glorious" by the "breaking away from all fears and passions and intolerance left behind by the war."

In each instance hopefulness, not without reasonable basis, is expressed for a more prosperous and successful new year.

Coolidge Impressed By Our Righteous Conduct

By HON. CALVIN COOLIDGE, Vice-President of the United States

(Written for I. N. S.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26 — The leading characteristic of our country this New Year is its adherence to righteous principles applied with sound common sense. Under this policy there has been a steady and increasing progress, which must continue through the new year.

Enterprise and government have co-operated to relieve the people of unnecessary burdens and restore prosperity. Industry and agriculture have been encouraged. Crops have been bountiful. Employment at good wages is plentiful. The great mass of the people are devoted in their religious faith and firm in their maintenance and support of those institutions of freedom which we cherish as peculiarly our own.

In no other land are there like blessings. This is our heritage. It is secure as long as we remain a righteous people.

When all around there is unrest, uncertainty and strife, America remains vigorous and self-reliant, peaceful, prosperous and secure—the hope of the world.

For the perpetuation of these conditions Americans must stand firm in the new year. They must abide in their religious faith. They must keep their respect for authority. They must support the Constitution and render obedience to the laws. They must continue steadfast of purpose, exemplifying the homely virtues of honesty, industry and thrift, which are the foundations of all character. To these must be added toleration, mercy and charity.

These made America. These will preserve America.

Ulster Confident And Hopeful Of New Year

By The Rt. Hon. SIR JAS. CRAIG, Bart. M. P., Prime Minister of Northern Ireland

(Written for I. N. S.)

LONDON, Dec. 26—Despite the many representations which have been published from time to time with regard to the situation in Ulster, I am glad to be able to assure you that she is looking forward to the future with hope and confidence. Peace reigns within her borders and the administration of justice is being carried out effectively throughout her six counties. Her industries are prosperous and she has made the necessary commercial preparations to take a full share in the trade revival of the world. The government of Northern Ireland despite the malevolent accusations to the contrary is actuated by the sole desire of promoting the welfare and happiness of all classes and creeds under its jurisdiction, and it is a sign of great hopefulness that those who formerly refused to recognize its authority are now prepared to do so frankly.

LaFollette Glad To See People In Power

By SENATOR ROBERT M. LA FOLLETTE (Republican, of Wisconsin)

(Written for I. N. S.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26. — The year 1923 opens bright with promise for further progress toward the solution of the greatest single problem of our time—the regaining of control of the Government by the people of the United States.

We are in a period in which reactionary, predatory forces are fighting desperately to continue in the enjoyment of special privileges built up over a long period of time.

The American people in 1922 struck a smashing blow for truly representative government at Washington. I hope to see in 1923 the same measure of progress made toward this goal.

The masses of the people are keenly alive to the economic and political evils which oppress them, and they are determined to obtain thru constitutional means appropriate remedies for those evils.

Progressives in Congress and in State Governments will be under a great responsibility within the next twelve months. The people look to them to formulate a sound constructive program dealing with transportation, credit, marketing and other agencies affecting the daily life of the people, which, under representative government, should be made to function for the benefit of the many rather than for the selfish and unjust enrichmen tof the few.

The year 1923 will inevitably bring a line of cleavage between men in public office who are devoted to the service of the common people and those who seek to protect and serve the few who enjoy special privileges at the expense of the mass of their fellow-citizens.

We may safely rely in 1923 upon the faith of the fathers of our country that the American people in the end will use the political power in their hands wisely, effectively and patriotically in working out the great problem which now confront them.

Norris Says Election Augurs Well For 1923

By SEN. GEORGE W. NORRIS, Republican, of Nebraska.) One of the Progressive Leaders of the Senate.

(Written for I. N. S.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26. — The common people of our country have cause to rejoice this New Year's.

The increasing independence of the patriotic, thotful American citizen is a cause for thanksgiving, and that he has come to assert his independnce in national politics cannot be denied after the verdict of last November's elections. This growing independence is an omen of good for the nation and it augurs well for the new year.

Whatever we may think of the result of the recent election we can rejoice that the American voter shows a remarkably increased tendency to throw off the yoke of partisanship. One of the great evils of our Government has been the tendency of the ordinary person to follow blindly the dictates and commands of the self-appointed, self constituted party leaders.

With the voter showing independence, progress in national legislation based upon more progressive ideals and more thoroughly in line with the wishes of the people, can not be denied. I think a great step toward this kind of legislation will be made in the new year.

Better government and increased happiness must come when the voter shows his independence and his freedom from control of self constituted influences. Independent and conscientious law makers will bring happiness and contentment to the people.

The new year holds forth golden opportunity to the man who will serve the people above any party affiliation. The nation has need of law makers who will bow only to the dictates of conscience. It seems to me this type of high spirited public servant is coming into his own at last and the new year looms as one of progress and happiness for the people.

ERA OF PROSPERITY PREDICTED FOR UNITED STATES; EUROPE IS NOT OVER-CONFIDENT

Shaw Can't Say Much for Men at Britain's Helm

George Bernard Shaw evidently doesn't think much of statesmen at the helm of British affairs, he indicated, when asked for an expression of opinion on the outlook for 1923. He authorized the following:

By GEO. BERNARD SHAW. (Written for International News Service.)

LONDON, Dec. 26. — The leaders of Great Britain have no views on the prospects of the world for the new year. They do not think ahead.. They would not be elected if they did. For such views as they have consult the earlier editions of "Little Arthur's History of England."

Borah Wants To Break Away From War Fears

By SEN. WILLIAM E. BORAH (Republican, of Idaho.) One of the Independent Leaders of the Senate.

(Written for I. N. S.)

WASHINGTON, Dec 26 — I should like to see the year 1923 made glorious by one great achievement — a moral achievement—the breaking away from all the fears and passions and intolerance left behind by the war.

The aftermath of war is in some respects a severer test of a people's character than war itself. If we could put behind us the bitterness, the hates, the spirit of vengeance so prevalent as a result of the war it would be an achievement making for happiness, for prosperity and for peace.

When the great Civil War closed our country was given over to the bitterness and to the hates naturally born of civil strife. It was the sublime teachings of Lincoln which helped to banish these passions from the hearts of Americans. Had those who wanted to establish a military government over the South succeeded we would never again perhaps have had a reunited country.

And we will never have a reunited family of nations so long as the present policies based on fear and force obtain.

The world needs a different creed and must have it if it is to be saved.

Labor's Outlook Dark Until Peace Is Made

By PHILIP SNOWDEN, M. P.

(Written for I. N. S.)

The outlook for labor from the international standpoint will remain dark until peace has been established in Europe. Unless a determined effort is made quickly to settle the reparations questions and the other disturbing results of the false peace treaties it may well be that in the coming year the economic ruin of Europe will be completed.

There is only one way to establish and maintain peace, and that is by and through a league of nations—all inclusive.

America can best serve herself and the causes for which she entered the European War, and best help Europe and the world by helping to make the League of Nations such an effective instrument.

Civilization In Flux, Senator Walsh Thinks

By SENATOR DAVID I. WALSH, (Democrat, of Massachusetts.)

WASHINGTON, Dec 26 — The year 1923 dawns with civilization in a state of flux.

The gravity of the present crises in the world's affairs was never more manifest. Stupendous difficulties and dangers circumvent society. Gross currents and conflicting tides make for much uncertainty as to the exact direction toward which the world is drifting.

There never was greater need of leadership—sound, sturdy, courageous leadership—that will really work for productive and creative ends. Unless our leaders act promptly and decisively to bring peace, disarmament, stabilization of exchange and finances to the world, and at home to eliminate the waste and excessive spread between the producers' price and the consumers' cost, the control of the laws of supply and demand for profit-making purposes to the detriment of the working classes thru unemployment and irregular wages, the civilization that we know will have collapsed, and all other questions will be of no moment.

While planning to eliminate waste of war, of life, of health by malnutrition and unsanitary conditions, of human possibilities by under education and of production by unemployment above all let us eliminate the waste of time in dealing with the supremely urging questions of the day.

May 1923 reveal the leaders with intellectual and moral courage to tackle the realities of today and who will pilot humanity to a safe port where good-will, mutual understanding, peace, prosperity and happiness reign!

Briton Says Prospects Don't Appear 'Bright'

By J. H. CLYNES, M. P., President of the British Union of General Workers.

(Written for I. N. S.)

LONDON, Dec. 26. — I would not describe world prospects for the new year as "bright." There is a lack of agreement and unity. The governments and leaders in many countries are taking a narrow view of world interests, and common well being suffers because of continued conflict.

America and Britain acting together could do much to lead in securing the beginnings of world co-operation. Nothing can be worse than to return to the plan of alliances which existed before the war.

America and Britain could destroy such a plan without excluding from their friendship other nations ready to join with them for world progress.

Bush Won't Attempt To Guess Over Few Months

By IRVING T. BUSH, President Chamber of Commerce, State of New York, President of Bush Terminal Co.

(Written for I. N. S.)

NEW YORK, Dec 26. — We have pretty well cleaned house in the United States, and I look for continued good times for the next few months. I place only that limit because it is unwise to look too far ahead. Business in this country is headed in the right direction. We will have a few family squabbles over domestic problems, but the real danger is an east wind from Europe. Even tho our own affairs are on the mend we cannot escape a reflection of trouble abroad.

Pat Harrison Likes Progressivism Trend

By SENATOR PAT HARRISON, (Democrat, of Mississippi.)

(Written for I. N. S.)

WASHINGTON, Dec 26 — The New Year looms with a promise of good things for the American people from a political viewpoint.

It will not appear as rosy as some of us would wish, but while a Republican administration will continue in control of the Government the personnel of Congress is changed through greatly reduced Republican majorities and infusion of much Progressive blood. Reactionary leadership during the coming year in both House and Senate will be held by such a delicate thread it cannot strain itself. Democratic safety and the small element of Progressives in the Republican ranks will open avenues through which the American people at least will have an approach to Congress.

We can be assured that no such record can possibly be made by the Republican party in 1923 as was made in 1922. In the last year we have seen an iniquitous tariff bill foisted upon the people, the product of a system of bartering and trading which will increase the cost of living, add to the riches of certain selfish interests and which will fleece the great masses of American people.

We saw a tax bill enacted last year which shifted taxes instead of lifting them and which removed just taxes from those able to pay, while maintaining taxation burdens on those not able to bear them. We saw the coinage of Newberryism, which means the plundering of the people through the purchase of power. We saw the pet of this administration, George Harvey, through his irresponsible and intemperate utterances, lower our diplomatic service in the eyes of the world. We saw the interests of honest business jeopardized, the cause of the farmer ignored and the rights of labor threatened. We saw a complete breakdown in the administration's ability to meet both domestic and international problems.

We saw Republican leadership "walk up the hill and down" in an effort to lend $5,000,000 to Liberia when suffering was rampant in our own boundaries and appeals of the needy went unheeded. We saw a concerted attempt made to ravish the Constitution by enactment of the anti-lynching bill, which would have wiped out State lines. We saw lastly the administration repudiate its promises to the American soldier while attempting to tax the American people $850,000,000 to subsidize the shipping trust.

The year 1923, whatever it brings us, cannot be worse than 1922. With new blood in Congress the future certainly does seem more promising.

Russia Determined To Be Independent Unit

By ANDREW ROTHSTEIN, Representative of Soviet Russia in Great Britain.

(Written for I. N. S.)

LONDON, Dec. 26.—Soviet Russia is facing the coming year with confidence.

In the economic sphere the ground is daily becoming firmer under her feet.

But she is firmly determined on one thing—that she will remain not only in politics but also in economics a free and sovereign State, fulfilling her function in the world of States as an independent unit. Under no circumstances will she consent to accept unfair and impossible burdens, which can only have the result of reducing her to the status of a colony, though her chains should be gilded by the League of Nations. She became a free laboring community in November, 1917, and intends to remain so. It rests with the Western nations to say whether she shall labor in co-operation with and for the benefit of all or remain a stranger both to the wealth of the West and to its miseries.

Senator Lodge Not Exercised Over New Year

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, venerable Republican leader of the Senate, has NO New Year's message for the American people.

"I have no statement to make for anybody on any subject on any occasion," Lodge replied to a request.

"Won't you give a statement for New Year's Day?" the reporter pressed. "It's a holiday, you know."

"Certainly I know it," snapped Lodge. "But it's NOT such a damned unusual holiday, it comes every year."

Bourbon Chief Sees Improving Conditions

By SENATOR FURNIFOLD M. SIMMONS Democrat, of North Carolina), Democratic Leader in the Senate.

(Written for I. N. S.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26. — The new year gives promise of much improvement. The American people may well be thankful for the result of the November election. That result dealt a staggering blow to standpatism, Newberryism, reactionism and the plunderbund in the United States.

It is not too much to say that the result of the election means the loosening to a large extent of the death grasp that the big interests have held the last two years on the throat of the American Government. Clean politics and a stanch and real progressive Americanism are again rising to control in this country.

In the new Congress elected last November there is a distinct anti-administration majority in both Houses, altho there is a nominal Republican majority in each body. We may, I think, with confidence look for a more hopeful fight to be waged in the interest of the masses of the American people.

Reaction has been halted, the Republican program of hate has been given up by that party in a more temperate campaign now under way to save itself from impending destruction, and I think that the representatives of the people are again to give genuine consideration on their merits to the great economic and other issues that now divide the American people into two political parties.

The Fordney-McCumber Profiteers' Tariff act is greatly handicapping the business of the country, but the genius of American business men may be expected to overcome to a large degree the effects of even that monumental legislative blunder. On the whole, the new year's outlook is promising of better times to come.

Senator Watson Sees "Confused Situation"

By SEN. JAMES E. WATSON, Republican, of Indiana.

(Written for I. N. S.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26. — The outlook for the new year, politically and economically, presents a confused situation to the keen observer. Nothing is certain save that strange events will come to pass, events fraught with the greatest interest and possibly with the gravest peril to the American people.

The policy which permits individualists to rise to power, men who place personal glorification above the good of their country, will, if carried to its logical results, prove disastrous to the nation. It is very evident that we have now reached the point where we must choose between a government by and thru the agency of political parties and one by and thru the agency of an individual, in which party principles and platforms are cast aside and only a person taken into consideration.

We must now choose between the type of men who have faithfully followed the policies laid down by our forefathers and the type who blindly promise impossible remedies for non-existing afflictions, merely to win a temporary popularity.

America has always prospered under party government, the only responsible government, and one in which the party in power is held answerable to the people for its conduct of their affairs.

When present unrest shall have passed and the "tumult and shouting" shall have died out, it will be found that the record of the present Administration has been one of progress. The national debt has been reduced, national expenditures lowered by hundreds of millions of dollars, the burden of taxation lightened, amicable relations established with the whole world and a more prosperous condition inaugurated at home. This Administration will continue to go forward with new successes this year if the people give it the moral support necessary for successful ventures.

If the individualists are endorsed and their policies, first of obstruction and then destruction, are followed, the nation founded on different concepts is sure to suffer, Lincoln wisely said. "You can fool some of the people all the time and all of the people some of the time, but you can't fool all the people all the time." It is during that period which hitherto has been of short duration when you can "fool all the people some of the time" that trouble comes to the Republic. It is just such a period as we are now passing thru.

Such a time as the present demands the most earnest consideration of our national problems by right-thinking people and this is essential if our institutions are to be preserved.

Steady Increase Seen By Express Co. Chief

By G. C. TAYLOR, President American Railway Express Co.

(Written for I. N. S.)

NEW YORK, Dec 26. — The Express, whose operations extend thruout the entire continent, is a reliable barometer with respect to business conditions generally.

A reading of this barometer during the last three months has shown a general revival of business—more so, however, in some sections of the country than in others, but we have observed a gradual expansion of better business in each succeeding month.

With constructive legislation, conservative regulation and a spirit of co-operation manifest between the shipping public and the transportation companies, our prediction for 1923 is for a steadily increasing business generally, which will require the movement of a large volume of traffic by the transportation companies.

"Moderate" Expansion Of Business Forecast

By CHARLES H. SABIN, Chairman of the Board, Guaranty Trust Company of New York.

(Written for I. N. S.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 26. — The year 1922 has been, on the whole, a period of reviving business activity and strengthening of the bases for the resumption of general prosperity in this country. This broad development is a continuation of a movement which began in 1921, following the drastic reaction in the latter part of 1920 and the first part of 1921.

I expect a moderate further expansion of business. How long this will continue without a greater degree of improvement in European conditions than is now in prospect is, of course, problematical. Moreover, should the recent rate of increase in average commodity prices be continued, the resistance to the advances may fairly soon result in so hesitant an attitude on the part of the consumers as to arrest the expansion of general business. . . Not all the difficulties of the readjustment necessitated by the World War and its aftermath have been met. We shall need particularly to guard against any attempt to find short cuts to prosperity by measures that impair the bases for enduring economic betterment.

Progress Challenge Of 1923, Capper's Opinion

By SENATOR ARTHUR CAPPER (Republican, of Kansas,) Chairman of the Senate Agriculture "Bloc."

(Written for I. N. S.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26. — The challenge of the New Year is progress.

On New Year's Day Americans as a nation and as individuals should look forward to a sweeping wave of progressivism, which seems certain of carrying our national and individual fortunes further along the roadway to success than any effort of the year just ending.

For the first time there is a fair prospect that the farmer is going to get consideration. The farmer has been fighting for several years, and now he is just showing the hard - boiled Eastern crowd that the future of our country does depend on prosperity in the agriculture industry.

Progressives have been given a greater voice in the halls of Congress, and the Government will be more representative of the people's wishes during the coming year. It will also be more responsive to the people. The legislation of the new year should be of real value and real service, for conservatives must see the handwriting on the wall if they fail to carry out the commands of the people. It will be a year of mass legislation instead of class legislation, as has been the rule.

The past year may have brought but little progress to us as a nation, but I do not think it was a failure. The mistakes made and which the people held judgment upon last November should act as a tonic to our legislators this year. They cannot hope to make the same mistakes again and continue to serve the people.

The reconstruction problems of the post-war period are rapidly being solved. There is a constant movement toward normal conditions everywhere. If the indications of progress in the new year mature the end of 1923 will find us much nearer national prosperity than we have been since the war.

I believe we stand before the world to-day recognized more than ever before as the champion of freedom among mankind. We enter the new year more secure than ever before in the friendship and confidence of the nations of the world. I am an optimist, and I believe in my country and my future.

Ramsay MacDonald Is Pleased With Outlook

By J. RAMSAY MacDONALD, M. P., Leader of the Labor and Opposition Party of Great Britain.

(Written for I. N. S.)

LONDON, Dec. 26.—The British elections have not only shown that the people of this country are turning to serious consideration of its problems but have a new spirit of approaching them. We are getting more and more interested in human life and all its experiences and are beginning to see that mere material interest, however important and powerful it may be, must always be subordinate to human life. Therefore I look upon the 1923 prospects with a hopeful heart. The destruction of the war and the even greater destruction of the peace has left us poorer than ever we have been, and has almost shattered the social and economic relations upon the smooth working of which the elementary livelihood of millions of people depend, and therefore our problems are to be many. But if they are faced in good courage and with a clear understanding of their nature we can overcome them, and the return of the most powerful Labor Party that has ever appeared in the House of Commons in this country is a proof that politics are returning to realities and that this new Parliament will deal with common interests and not only with class concerns. In that frame of mind I cross the threshold of 1923.

Stabilization Is Need, Hotel Manager Thinks

By E. M. STATLER, President of Hotels Statler, Inc., and Managing Director of Hotel Pennsylvania, New York.

(Written for I. N. S.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—In my opinion the prospects for a volume of business in all lines are exceedingly good for 1923. What is most to be desired, of course, is a stabilization of conditions so that affairs will be on an even keel and so far as possible we shall not have sudden ups and downs. It seems to me that the upward trend in the cost of labor and material which accompanies the revival of business is unhealthy and unfortunate. If it is persisted in I believe, in the long run, it will not result for the good of the country.

I feel that these factors in business should be stabilized and kept within more reasonable bounds. However, I am optimistic. The outlook for next year is far better than it was at the opening of 1923.

DAILY NEWS LETTER

GENERAL NEWS And GOSSIP From STAFF WRITERS At HOME And ABROAD

By ROLAND KREBS.

NEW YORK, Dec 26 — New York pictured for years by stage book and film as the hub of iniquity, vice, rumorants and all else that is bad and rotten, has been terribly maligned.

On the contrary New York doubtless is the most moral city in the world. Young man coming here to make his fortune has as good a chance of becoming sinful and wicked as he would have in a monastery. New York is so utterly moral that it breeds germs on one's sense of decency.

The writer has been a guest in much more immoral cities, great gobs of sin in Akron, Ohio, and Flagstaff, Arizona, than in this metropolis where ruin and damnation are supposed to be as ubiquitous and tenacious as flypaper.

The only way to be immoral in New York is to be rich. Vice is terribly expensive. It is found only in costly apartments and it has a retinue of lackeys and three or four cars.

True Broadway has its quota of vamps, but business went back to normalcy all too soon for them. They wander up and down the Rialto and strive, oh, so hard, to appear vicarious. But through the cracked laughter and dimming eyes groans and glares the question "When do we eat?"

No sooner than a prosperous looking hardware salesman from Chicago or a well fed lawyer from Tallahassee appears and looks in friendly fashion at the wicked woman than a policeman bobs up from nowhere and frowns. And that ends that. Truly, New York has diluted the scarlet woman to a pale pink.

There is no flirting done in parks, on subway trains or bus tops, because the lady with whom a gentleman flirts may have a star pinned under her coat and prove to be a person whose business it is to ensnare mashers.

And the awful cabarets! They are made to close at 1 a. m. and everyone knows that a really good party never gets started until after 1 o'clock.

One of the reasons for all of this surely is that New York is one of the best policed cities on earth. Despite jokes to the tune that a policeman never can be found when he's needed, they are plentifully sprinkled about and most apt to appear if some certain party is trying to make some other pa ty.

In these days it's Walla Walla and places like that that are sinful, for so far as New York is concerned vice has joined the back-to-the-farm movement.

INTEREST CENTERS ON PITT-STANFORD GAME ON SATURDAY

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Dec. 26.—With the East victorious in the first of three post season intersectional football contests on the Pacific coast this year—but by a narrow margin, interest today was focussed in the Pittsburgh-Stanford battle next Saturday.

Both university of West Virginia and Gonzago University were happy today. West Virginia not only returned the East a victory but kept her own undefeated record intact.

On the other hand, Gonzago took pride in holding the easterners to 21-to-13 score.

BORAH'S PEACE

Russo-Japanese war, as a historic instance of the kind of arbitration he had in mind.

He is still unalterably opposed to "entangling political alliances" such as he thot the Versailles treaty imposed, but he has never assumed the position that the United States should not extend its commercila relations with the rest of the world, and where the economic and financial welfare of the United States was concerned with those of Europe, he thot it to be the best interest of the American people that their government should not decisively to bring order out of chaos.

The statement of Senator Medill McCormick, Republican, Illinois, who has just returned from Europe, that hunger riots among the German people this winter are inevitable, and Germany is now in dire need of $100,000,000 worth of American wheat, will be seized upon by Senators Capper, Republican, Kansas, McNary, Republican, Oregon, and other leaders of the senate "farm bloc" as additional evidence that the buying power of Europe should be restored ,and the surplus farm products of America made available to hungry European peoples.

Senator McCormick stopped at the whitehouse today on his way from his home to the capital, but did not see President Harding. He declined to amplify his statement on conditions in Europe, explaining he would have a "whole lot to say" in the senate on Thursday or Friday.

Capper and McNary are both ready to lead the "farm bloc" forces to the support of Borah, and to join with him in the argument that the European debacle Senator McCormick said is impending must be averted if the farmers and the rest of the American people are not suffering acutely from a continuation of the economic and financial stress gripping the German and other peoples of Europe

Resumption of debate on the Borah proposal when the senate reconvenes tomorrow after its Christmas holiday is regarded as certain to fix the lines of both opponents and proponents of the Idaho senator's plan to restore sound economics and finances in Europe, is expected to result in a verbal storm.

ORGANIZATION OF WORKERS' PARTY IS UNDERTAKEN

NEW YORK, Dec. 26—Steps to organize a national labor party were undertaken today by the delegates to the second annual convention of the Workers' party following a division yesterday.

The delegates said that the undertaking of this organization was instructed by Soviet leaders in Moscow.

During the six-hour debate, the convention debated the advisability of accepting the instructions from Moscow, leaders pointing out that conditions existing in the United States often made it inadvisable to follow instructions to the letter.

Ludwig Lore, editor of the New York Volks Zeitung, requested the delegates to consider seriously whether following the instructions from Moscow would not hamper the progress of the proletarian revolution in the United States

During the six hours of debate, the advisability of resurrecting the Communist party, which had been driven underground by department of justice activities in 1920, and making an open fight for its recognition. This was finally declared to be inadvisable.

Considerable stress was also laid upon the unwise policy of uttering statements in their official communications which can be construed as advocating force and violence

"Do more and write less,' advised Nels Kjar, a delegate from Chicago

"We have been putting too much on paper."

KELLOGG LIKELY TO SUCCEED FALL AS INTERIOR SEC.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26—Senator Frank B. Kellogg, Republican, Minnesota, defeated last November for re-election to the United States senate, may be chosen by President Harding as a successor to Secretary of the Interior Fall, who retires from the cabinet within the next few months, according to reports in political circles here today.

No date has definitely been set for Secretary Fall's retirement, but it is generally understood he will leave the cabinet at the completion of two years' service

Kellogg is a close personal friend of Mr. Harding's and a member of the so-called "presidential foursome" at golf. Secretary Fall was a sitting member of the senate when appointed to the cabinet, and Kellogg's appointment would serve the plan of keeping one senatorial representative in the executive branch of the government

The prospective early vacancy in the cabinet has brot out other candidates for the post. Among those mentioned are Senator Harry S. New, of Indiana, and Senator Porter J. McCumber, of North Dakota, both of whom were defeated in the primaries this year, and Carmi Thompson of Ohio.

CAMP CHOOSES ALL-AMERICAN GRIDIRON TEAM

NEW YORK, Dec. 26—One man each from the Navy, Princeton, Lafayette, the Army, Harvard, Pennsylvania, California, Iowa, Cornell, Michigan and Chicago, appears in the lineup of Walter Camp's all-American team made public in the current issue of Collier's.

For the first time in many years no college can muster more than one man in the first team selections and of the entire list covering three teams, only the Navy, Princeton, Army, Harvard, California, Iowa, Michigan and Yale can boast of two or more players named

Michigan leads the way in this respect with three players, one for each team.

After commenting on his selections as embodying the co-ordination of mentality, power and spirit, Mr Camp goes on to state

"Practically every man in the backfield is a threat, not of one kind of an attack, but of three, while in the line we have ends who can block tackles tackles who can get the jump on their guards, and then clean up the secondary guards who can open holes, can take part in further interference and a center accurate and steady in his passing and still instantly useful after his pass is made"

COSTLY STARS OF DIAMOND TO GET THE 'O. O.'

Jimmy O'Connell And Willie Kamm Must Stand Searchlight In '23

BOTH FROM PACIFIC COAST

O'Connell Sometimes Suffers From "Tired Feeling," But Willie Full Of Pep

By LARRY SMITS

NEW YORK, Dec. 26. — Two youngsters upon whom the eyes of baseball critics in the press box and bleachers will rest in the 1923 season are Jimmy O'Connell and Willie Kamm—the most expensive pieces of baseball flesh that ever brought gold and sighs from check writing major league magnates Their sale figures were records, the $75,000 paid by John McGraw for O'Connell being a high-water mark until Comiskey laid down $100,000 in cash and players to the amount of $20,000 more for Kamm

Inasmuch as their sales took these teammates and buddies of the San Francisco Coast League club to different teams, in different leagues, there will be no chance to compare them next season—unless the Giants and White Sox tangle in the world's series, a dream that seems not more than half possible of realization

Joins "Sons of Rest."

But from a devout San Francisco fan we have a thumbnail comparison of James and William that may or may not prove interesting, in view of future performances O'Connell has been described as tall and fast on a fly ball or on the bases, after he gets started, and a mean hitter from the left side of the plate. It also has been rumored about that he suffered from hookworm after his sale set minor league records

Frisco fans bear this out, and the following prediction frequently was passed about the bleachers in his home town, as Jimmy made his languid way from center field to the bench.

"Wait until McGraw gets hold of him. He'll take that drag - ankle spirit out of him soon enough"

On the bases he was another player again. Too big to have a flashy getaway, he knew how to take advantage of battery delays and was always willing to take a chance, generally getting away with it. He furnished frequent exhibitions of the stuff that Cobb made famous and that is becoming unfortunately rare in these days of "biff-bang" baseball

Kamm is Peppier.

Kamm is smaller, trimly built, not so fast; heady, but not as aggressive on the bases; a right-hand hitter, always dangerous and always in the game.

He is full of the jazz, morale or esprit de corps that is known on the diamond as pepper Between pitched balls he cannot keep still, but moves forward with a peculiar, springy step, toward the batter and back to his place at third, or toward the box for a word with the pitcher Always working, Willie. As sweet an infielder as the minors ever saw. To right or left, gets them all And throw—San Francisco was hysterical about his ability there.

And Willie was his name on the Coast—not Billy, as some have tried to christen him since he became a White Sox. No implication of effeminacy there. Just the moniker the fans put on a player they liked without reserve

Willie Popular.

Willie was far more popular with Seal fans than Jimmy Both pulled a prima donna shortly after their sales into the big time, both with the more or less understandable notion of getting some slice of the pie that their sales brought to the San Francisco club. O'Connell suffered criticism for holding out for more money after his sale, before the start of the 1922 season.

When he didn't deliver in the pinch, or hobbled one, as the best sometimes do, he was referred to as the "Sixbit Beauty"

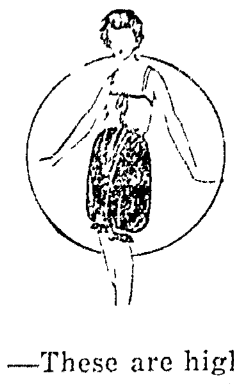

After Chicago bought Kamm in mid-season he disappeared from the line-up for a day or so, and it was known in the sport writing fraternity and to most of the fans that Willie was dickering to get some added dough. He got it, returned to the line up, and not a word was passed from the stands in criticism

It was perhaps the natural difference between the customers' attitude toward a player who always is working, or who appears to be, and toward one who sometimes appears to be loafing Or, perhaps because the higher priced of these two costly babies is just naturally more popular

STATE CONFIDENT OF CONVICTION IN LA. KLAN MURDERS

MER ROUGE, La., Dec. 26.—The state of Lousiana is so confident that its case in the kidnapping and murder of Watt Daniels and Thomas Richards is strong enough to convince even those who may sympathize with persons accused of the crime that it will not need to ask for a change of venue when the preliminary hearing begins, it declared today.

This hearing has been definitely set for January 5 at Bastrop. It was reported that Gov. Parker would ask for a hearing at some other place, but it is not believed here the change will be made

Christmas Day was uneventful in Moorehouse parish. It was marked by a big feast in Bastrop and in Mer Rouge for members of the state guard who are on duty at both places. City officials in both towns were hosts at a regular Xmas dinner.

Despite the fact that T. J. Burnett of Speaker, the only man arrested so far, has been denied the privilege of talking with visitors, the International News Service received word from him. He denied he is a member of the Ku Klux Klan and asserted positively he would have no trouble in proving he had nothing to do with the assault on Daniels and Richards. He said he was enjoying his incarceration because it was the first time he had been given a chance to rest in a year

Burnett has engaged two attorneys Harvey Todd of Bastrop and Percy Sandel of Monroe. To most questions his only reply was that he had hired lawyers to do his talking for him.

Todd declined to make any statement until he had conferred with his colleague.

MURDERER ESCAPES INTO W. VA. HILLS

STEUBENVILLE, Ohio, Dec. 26.—The search for James Pearson, who is charged with murdering Roy Ledson, Hancock-co W. Va., coal operator, and seriously wounding William Ledson, his brother, during a quarrel near the Ledson home near Weirton last Friday morning has narrowed down to the hills about Weirton, police declared today.

Bloodhounds have been used in tracking Pearson in the hills about Weirton

"Pearson will be under arrest within a few hours," declared Weirton police this morning, indicating that they have information Pearson will probably surrender.

Bloodhounds tracked the alleged slayer to a point in the hills opposite Steubenville where the trail was lost. Nothing has been uncovered police say, that furnishes a motive for the double shooting.
